

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A data processing apparatus is provided with a compressor which compresses inputted job data every block, a memory which stores the compressed data every block, and a controller which sets a size of the block of the data to be compressed every block by the compressor depending on the attribute of the data.